Daredevil to change tats

MOTOCROSS champ Carey Hart plans to get part of his inkwork redone.

Daredevil rider Hart, who is in town with his estranged wife but now girlfriend Pink, was practising at the Showgrounds yesterday.

Hart isn't happy with his left sleeve, and wants to start over.

"I'd like to, the technology's come along way. We have a really good tattoo removal artist in my tattoo shop so I'm kicking the idea around," he said yesterday.

"I want to still be able to get tattoos when I'm in my 50s, but I only have so much skin."

Hart's passion for tats turned into a business in 2004 when he teamed up with John Huntington. They launched the Hart and Huntington Tattoo Company in Las Vegas, and reality TV show Inked started soon after.
